Why Synods?

Every year across the country almost every diocese in the Australian Anglican Church has its Diocesan Synod, called by the Bishop or Archbishop of the Diocese. Other more traditional denominations also hold Synods while the non-conformist churches hold similar regular gatherings. The principle for the most part comes from Acts 15 when the first council was held in Jerusalem as the gospel broke out amongst the gentiles to resolve particular issues. One of the hallmarks of the Anglican Church across the world is this kind of gathering where important decisions theologically, administratively and legally are made.

This process for all its strengths and weakness matters because it reflects the understanding that leaders, ideally under the Spirit's leading, are to make decisions for the church, its mission and growth. Nonetheless many decisions are not to be made by a select few in an enforced oligarchy or rigid hierarchy but by representatives both clerical and lay from across the Diocese. Neither is the church a purely democratic institution that requires every member to vote before any decision can be made. Nothing will get done nor is anyone able to hold a particular view beyond the agreed view. This tension between the two poles is something every denomination has struggled with over the years. Most schisms involve disagreements over church governance. Nonetheless we pray and trust God will be at work building the church, the saints who gather around Jesus in his Word by the Spirit.

THIS WEEKS READINGS:

Matthew 13:54-14:12

Church Matters

What a week at KAC! The church was decorated to look like a jungle, it looked stunning with specially painted backdrops, posters, lots of greenery and camping gear. About 35 keen, excited and engaged children came to participate in the activities that had been thoroughly prepared down to the finest detail. The three groups were led by welcoming and innovative parishioners. The craft activities were well planned and prepared. A couple of enthusiastic and energetic young people entertained the children with physical games. The songs were happy, and the children joined in with actions and a lot of bounce. Even the morning teas were prepared to fit the theme of the day with lion faces and other fantastic creations.

A huge thank you to all who prepared, painted, organised, delivered, served, taught, encouraged, sang, photographed, presented and registered. An especially big thank you to Kaye and Sabrina who were inspired to deliver this program.

A good time was had by all and our Lord and Saviour was glorified in this place, hallelujah!!!

Please pray for the children who participated – that the seeds of the kingdom that have been planted continue to grow and bear much fruit.

In Christ, Lynne Smith (People's Warden)
