Servant King, Servant Leadership

With Palm Sunday Holy Week begins as we reflect upon the last few days of Jesus' life prior to his resurrection, of apparent joy at his entry into Jerusalem on a young donkey to the passionate cries for him to be crucified rather than the seditious Barabbas. Jesus experienced what few people have with regard to suffering or every king, at every level. He gave his life so we can live. Through our services this week we will be looking at a dark and challenging portion of the prophet Ezekiel, at a number of pronouncements and denouncements. In particular he rebuked the leaders of Judah, kings, prophets and priests, who wilfully led the people into idolatry and gross self-indulgence, despite what had happened to Israel a century previously.

As we consider the life of Jesus it would seem that in some key ways little had changed. Many amongst the religious of the day were obsessed with status and power and influence and Jesus had soon become a threat as he proclaimed the arrival of God's kingdom that would bring forgiveness, freedom and hope.

The cross speaks to us of victory, atonement and forgiveness, of reconciliation and redemption and it also speaks to us of service. Jesus came as the King of kings who did not take but gave, who did not demand but offered, who did not rule with armies and threats but with miracles and love. Jesus taught the disciples and teaches us to treat one another in the same way. Leadership amongst God's people is not about control or dominance, about self-interest and about personal gain. It's about service, about seeing the people we lead, our families and friends, our brothers and sisters in Christ grow in his likeness through repentance and faith. Control, apathy, influence, selfishness and all such things are foundations for leadership that God will not honour or bless. It is faith, humility, love and truthfulness that he will bless in the precious name of Jesus.
